

Another dream

I see that I've been having a lot more dreams recently

Since I've been trying to get into lucid dreams

No progress as of yet

So in the dream there were me and my classmates, I remember us going to random places and once we got in a restaurant the class A phone user asked me why I mixed two different drinks together and I explained that I did it because I wanted to see if I could taste the taste of the drink I mixed with the other drink

Also there was a dude who almost ran me over with a car who looked drunk, we were running in an empty hill there were very few houses, the grass had a bland color of green and the way the car was supposed to go was around the color of rocks Goku and Vegeta were fighting on in saiyon saga, so it was like a very very lonely village

There was a mirror in front of the license plate and the door needed a code for me to get into and I forgot the password so I thought I had to read it off of the reflection and apparently not

I also remember walking down the crowded city street awkwardly next to... what do I call her?

Class B student turned English who people used to call us “more than friends” which we weren’t because I didn’t even know her personally

Good enough

That’s all I remember about it

I’m sorry for any misspellings I just woke up